

A Fond Farewell "Lovers And Enemies"

Has it stopped raining since we died?
I forget if it was your tears that caused this.
Or have they given up like you did yet?
Can we show dry eyes to the world?

Because our foundation has sprung a leak, and we're
taking on water,
And all the precautions that we took for our hearts,
well, they don't matter.
So take all your bitter feelings and your memories and
head for higher ground,
Because in this age of love and enemies, it'd be a shame for us to drown.

And I'm still here waiting like the ocean floor,
Collecting sediment of you and me.
It's funny, the shapes we take when we fall apart.
Isn't that why you left, so we could change?

Because our foundation has sprung a leak, and we're
taking on water,
And all the precautions that we took for our hearts,
well, they don't matter.
So take all your bitter feelings and our memories and
head for higher ground,
Because in this age of love and enemies, it'd be a
shame for us to drown.

Because our foundation has sprung a leak, and we're
taking on water,
And all the precautions that we took for our hearts,
well, they don't matter.
So take all your bitter feelings and our memories and
head for higher ground,
Because in this age of love, it'd be a shame for us to drown.
