

Murmurs

"Echoing"

Visit "Echoing" on MotoLyrics.com

echoing and I hear it every day,
the pathetic prejudice.
echoing, it's nothing new,
it's what the world has gotten used to.
i do not ask a person why he's making choices
i do not choose to recognize ignorant voices
echoing and i hear it everyday,
the pathetic prejudice
echoing its nothing new
it's what the world has gotten used to.
alright everybody let's start at the beginning
by the end i hope you're putting yourself down.
screaming words from the Book of God
to a woman who's making choices.
I sing from the book of me and I say
"lower your voices"!
echoing and I hear it every day:
the pathetic prejudice.
echoing, it's nothing new,
it's what the world has gotten used to.
tell the man in the color of skin of your rights
do you see a color?
color's blind's what the bigot should be when he thinks his race is stronger there's nothing disgusting about being gay.
yet too many people have bad things to say maybe they should try it some day...
they might like it!
echoing, and I hear it every day,
the pathetic prejudice.
echoing, it's nothing new,
it's what the world has gotten used to

Visit Murmurs page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.