Among the myriad of green
Another grief has been heard today
It flew tearing out again

All the way through the landscapes of light
Till the dawning is killing the night
And how much time will be left
To paint the blue on the firmament?

And nothing will be changed,
Nothing else will resist without care
And the last regret harder to bear.
Who said you're invincible is not at your side now!
Not at your side now!
Somedays we're invisible,
no one can see us out in the myriad.

Your prayers cannot prevent what's meant to be broken!
