

Flaming June

"Everything You Couldn't Be"

Visit "Everything You Couldn't Be" on MotoLyrics.com

Honestly,
It's a battle to be happy
I want to know how people stay so calm
While working for others

Thought about walking out
But how would I pay the bills?
Miserable, just like before
In a new job

And I would love to awake from a dream

The hardest thing is growing older
With the discovery
You'll never be and you never were
Anything to anyone

Thought about reaching out
In the form of a novella
A simple tale of how I've failed
Noting every excuse

And I would love to awake

It was the darkest time that I remember
The way I'd left home, it broke my parents heart
They'd never known
The resent I held for being like them

And I would love to awake from a dream
And I would love to change

It's overstated, "It's too late for you!"

Visit Flaming June page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.