You think you're smart, you broke my heart, left me to cry alone

But you'll return, one day you'll learn the heart you break may be your own

You promised me your love would be a kind I'd never known

Though you weren't fair, you're unaware the heart you
break may be your own

You used my heart for a plaything, you'll be sorry, just wait and see

One day you'll find you are lonely, and the first one you'll think of is me

You'll look around and when you've found that you are all alone

Then you'll get wise and realize the heart you break
may be your own

wait and see

One day you'll find you are lonely and the first one
you'll think of is me

You'll look around and when you've found that you are
all alone

may be your own
