Who can I count on if I can't count on you? I never counted on you making me blue

They say you're running 'round with somebody new, who can I count on if I can't count on you?

I though I held the precious key to heaven, your love was sweet and gentle at the start

But now I feel that I can't go on living, if living means that we must live apart

Who can I count on if I can't count on you? There goes my happiness and here comes the blues

I can't convince myself that we're really through, who can I count on if I can't count on you?

The door to happiness was almost open, just one more step or two and I'd be in

Then all at once the vows you made were broken, the door to happiness was closed again

Who can I count on if I can't count on you? There goes
my happiness and here comes the blues

can I count on if I can't count on you?

Who can I count on? Who can I count on? Who can I count on if I can't count on you?
