in the midst of all these maybe's i found the never,somewhere has a border but nowhere goes on forever,and i am the messenger from this address,caught in a different kind of bind an organized mess,acceptance is for those who find something acceptable,it's so contemptuous the things we call respectable *if i were me,i'd bind myself with the burden of the free,break loose of this soap opera slavery,let the river back into the sea,if i were me it's hard to enjoy the world you have when all you do is dream of a better one,but i just like to look at the bullet i don't even own a gun,when we can all call each other customer then it will be a perfect world,when the white flag of surrender is unfurled,then the evil empire can drop it's disguise,and big business man will be know as the master of lies *if i were me,i'd crack the code of this misery,let the mirror glean what we refuse to see,shine a light in the bed of democracy,if i were me and they know how to turn the truth into a laughing stock,just some petty paranoiac trying to manufacture solid rock,and it's colder than we could ever know that black hole of greed,toss a scrap to the needy just enough to raise the debt and the need *if i were me,i'd live off the crumbs of reality,make the judge pay the legal fee,forget how to live and just learn to
and so i struggle,like all,thru a world that is a mirror of the worst in us,thru separate paths in our mutual misery,the soul stopping boredom of fruitless labor,stock market suicides,king of the heap,ant of the dung hill,we all sale ourselves the latest version of reality,and sale each other the latest escape from it,all thinking that the machine will run faultless,if we each assume our proper duty,all embalmed with the liquid gold parasite of the american dream,placated with the vision that with a little hard work you can get somewhere,when nowhere,and how to get there,is all so clear you just stay right here.
