LIVING THE LIFE

Â© Electric Babylon Music Author: M.M.

Well IÂ’ve driven over twenty thousand bridges, but I still donÂ’t know how to build one, and IÂ’ve touched a night sky full of dreams, and I still donÂ’t know how to feel one, and now the beginning is trying to hitchhike to the end, but its like your closest enemy trying to be your oldest friend, and I feel like the last leaf on the tree in november, but I forgot what I was trying to forget and now I just canÂ’t remember.

As life begins to make more sense living seems to make less, and I have flown into heavens bedroom and watched an angel undress, but sometimes I still feel so empty like passionÂ’s a dry river bed and IÂ’m a dam, I know who I am I just donÂ’t know where I am.
I was awarded a purple heart, but all my friends died in the war, well I miss them every now and then but I donÂ’t even visit their graves anymore, well I know the lyrics to every song thatÂ’s ever been sung, but these days find only silence on my tongue, and I still donÂ’t know what IÂ’ll do when IÂ’m finally back into a corner, will I come out fighting like a lion or just set there like little Jack Horner.
As life begins to make more sense living seems to make less, where the hell could any of this lead is anybodyÂ’s guess, itÂ’s a perfect world full of godÂ’s little sorrows, and today is full of excuses and tomorrows.
IÂ’m not full of self pity, and IÂ’m not full of hate, I just feel so out of place, IÂ’m just feeling my fate.
Well IÂ’ve busted thru a thousand walls, but I still don't know how to open the door, and I've saved myself like a blushing bride, but I still feel like some kind of a whore, and my heart is homicidal and my soul is suicidal, and I really just don't care no more.

As life begins to make more sense living seems to make less, and all I'm guilty of is I just will not confess, I love this life but I hate this vain parade, and I'll tell you what will come from all this belief in a charade.
This.
