SOPHIA IN BLUE

Â© Electric Babylon Music Author: M.M.

There is a universal woe in the shrug of her brow, caught in the gears of the ruthless mechanics of how, till it all seems a hollow game of survival and strife, and all she really has is the beating heart of her life, there was a world in her eyes now there's just a moon, there is a dream in her bed but it just sleeps till noon, she use to give the divine intervention of her touch, now she says she's got to much of a limp to be a crutch.
Sophia in blue, a sky without a sun, Sophia in blue, an empty ocean of love.
She rehearses her preferred scenario even the gods take heed, and the rain comes down roses for this pitiful deed, is there a secret shared is there a heaven waiting, her feline grace destruction is a goddess
creating, but she is ruined by the play of the elements and where is her fire, this light serves no heat just shadows of desire, she is a new world
buried in an ancient star mapped sky, without the motive curse of envy or the servitude of why.
Sophia in blue, sculpted in cold stone, Sophia in blue, a beauty without a mirror.
Does it have to be this petty little parade of vanity, she wonders on the world the chemical sum of her sanity, why some nasty little nothing
means more than the riches of silence, every bum's back ally every boardroom bride breeds violence, so she is her victim her wounded

eyes only read the lines, the ground offers no path the sky offers no signs, she is the math of ages undone by the moments arithmetic, the enormity of the now overfeeds her lust and leaves her lovesick.
Sophia in blue, dreaming of days divine, Sophia in blue, waiting in breath and bone.
