Jesus died and rose again
and when he did he tore that veil in two Down into the depths to find the keys to loose the chains and make us new He saw death and kept his head and we're forever in his debt can't measure it

Jesus tore the veil and consequently he exposed both me and you Everything behind the curtain thrust into the light of frightening truth
And in our sheer embarrassment
He held out his steady hand
And offered it

I am saved
He came for me
That everything
Could be redeemed
In my shame
He carries me, he carries me
Now the veil is torn we can't forget what grace compels us now to do His love is in forgiveness and forgiveness He has offered me and you say to the outcast "you belong" for in your weakness you are strong because He lives

I am saved
He came for me
That everything
Could be redeemed
In my shame
