Chattering chattering just stop the clutter she's hearing when walking and talking it's everything Everywhere there's a man with no face
His arms are reaching to her but he's blinded
By skin over eyes and she's always reminded That when we die we're always alone

So could this mean if everyone is alone we're together?
In the way that we're all together alone?

And if she wanted to just be a circle
She would have you believe she's just a poster girl
But now she sits alone on the bedroom floor
Cos you won't call at all

Stop it just stop it you people with veils on
Are reaching into her like nobodies business
But without loving them she does not exist
If only she'd morph into me then she could only see
Just by looking at her makes the dark disappear
One day I'll invent a way

So we can be with everyone who's alone together
In the way that they're all together alone

And if she wanted to just be a circle
She would have you believe she's just a poster girl
But now she sits alone on the bedroom floor
Cos you won't call at all

Friend: If you want her to be the one you take home
Just go on boy cos you're treating her mean!

Boy love: I don't know this feeling anyway and I'm so scared to let her into my heart Easy just to leave and fly away cos I'm so scared to let her see the real me

Girl Love: But when I'm with him, he connects with my mind
And I feel like the lonely cannot get to me

Friend: He's treating her mean
Boy Love: I'm treating her mean
Girl Love: He's treating me mean

And if she wanted to just be a circle
She would have you believe she's just a poster girl
But now she sits alone on the bedroom floor
Cos you won't even fucking call at all
And if she wanted to just be a circle
She would have you believe she's just a poster girl
But she just sits alone on the bedroom floor
Cos you won't call at all
