I was looking up at the amazing starry sky
Wondering if there was hope all over the world
But I failed to find any different conclusion
And I walk barefoot on eternal land

I have no way of putting things right

There is always sunshine above the promised place
She had nothing to lose oh, until then
The stars refused to dim even if doubt was fading away
So I walk barefoot
There is land in front of me now
So I walk barefoot on eternal land

I have no way of putting things right
