Remember me next to you
Touching your hand, like you wanted me to do
Inside I felt like crying, a dream that wasn't real
I knew that words were not enough
To show you how I feel
Close to you I knew that I found a pathway to a home
We freed ourselves and carved our names in stone

Remember when it rained that day we ran outside
To bath ourselves in nature
We had nothing to hide
But then I saw you crying
You said that we were through
I thought that you were playing
I played along with you
Then I realized that you choose a pathway on your own
And the rain on me started feeling cold

Even until now, I still don't understand
What happened on that day you refused to hold my hand
I finally stopped trying to understand your way
I felt I wouldn't realize what you would never say
Without you I know that I found a pathway on my own
I stopped to ask myself why you are gone

No more trying to understand your way
I felt I would not realize what you would never say
Without you I know that I found a pathway on my own
The day will come that I accept that you are gone
