The start was a long goodbye
In the end you just left me here
You wait for no miracle
You go to the land some book has told you about

So go you must find some warmth
The warmth you never found in your family
You hide under maple leaves
That's the most secret place
Hide your secret beauty
Just guard that secret well
With your life

And for everything you've got a name
And for everywhere you've got a map
But all the while
You just sharpened your knife

Go and save this country
A lot of people wait
Help to prevent forest fires
But you will always stand in the flames

And at least you need one year off
Just enough to define yourself
But all the while
You were just sharpening your knife

In your sleep
You were seeing me drive
Past some Canadian airline
But all your shirts
And short skirts are too cold
For some national park in the north

Cause it takes no meteorological knowledge
To say that the beach isn't warm in the arctic
All the while you were close to Alaska
You just pretended you were here with me
And all the while
You were just sharpening your knife

All the while
You were just waiting to push me off the cliff
