You catch yourself in the middle of an ending you catch yourself thinking you'll never be the same Bad apples & flat soft drinks, cheap bourbon & cheaper hotels
don't it feel like a slow death from a dogbite You catch yourself feeling lonely for worn-out behavior you catch yourself missing places you've never been Bad lemons & flat vocals, older women & older hotels don't it feel like a slow death from a dogbite
I'm leaving today unsatisfied She whispers something of happiness that makes you smile she whispers something of togetherness that makes you cringe
I'm leaving today unsatisfied
