Granddad was 80 years, physically still strong Went every Sunday by foot from house to church Days he was sitting against the windowpane, he greeted everyone
 Kids were always in his house and parents were around

But one day grandson decided, grandpa was to old Grandson bought the house and renovated it Granddad got transported to a elderly condo
 He got a room on the thirteenth floor with a bed

Grandpa didn't need to complain on nursing Three times a day a meal and sometimes a short talk But grandpa missed his house, his windowpane and his street
 The neighborhood where he used to live, where his house still stands

But f â ç â, ~ Ã, Â! Granddad was put away, cleaned up and dropped down
 Thank you for the work, you can go now
 Granddad is conserved, kept out of society
 Your time is over, you can go now Granddad f â ç â, ~ Ã, Â!
 Like, once a year, grandson drops by One short visit, it's always pretty sourish Grandson tells about his work, his wife, his house That house in that nice neighborhood, that was grandpa's home

Grandson says: f â ç â, ~ Ã... "Grandpa, I need to go now f â ç â, ~ Ã, Â
 The coffee cup not even empty, but the duty is done
 And granddad thinks silently: f â ç â, ~ Ã... "Why me? f â ç â, ~ Ã, Â
 Deep inside grandpa, it's his heart that cries out loud

Granddad passed away, he couldn't take it no more
 His whole life he worked hard and then he had to go Grandpa is slowly murdered and it took a year But grandson is happy in that house in that nice neighborhood f â ç â, ~ Ã, Â!
