Struggle, struggle, fighting begins at birth
My childhood in streets full of hate and dirt Divided by superior feelings of race, country and blood Driven by wars, murders, crimes in the name of a self-made God

[Chorus]

On my screen the world is burning I wonder that the earth's still turning But I'm not mad... I'm fucking angry

Living just for ourselves and our expensive new brought car
But if mother earth runs out of petrol you won't drive far Another hypocrite politician on my T.V. screen Telling me to vote for him, fuck off, I vote Mr. Bean

Cowardly like a thief in a deep, cold, dark night
With a murderous instinct from the deepest inside Rotten to the deepest core by materialistic possessions Led by insensible war pigs torturing till the confessions

This one deals about the shit that's going on in this world and about the egocentric behavior of mankind. Many songs have been written about this subject but as long as nothing changes,
I think it is necessary to write lyrics like this.
