Just when everything had come around I let you down

So old but still so young this foolish heart

Has just begun...to learn

Did I put that look upon your face

Did I rearrange your smile

Did I make you doubt you were first place

Even for a little while

I will be wrong and you can be right

I don't care just say you forgive me tonight

The day is never long enough to hold you like I could

And I am not god enough to keep you like I would

These words are never strong enough

To heal you like they should

But I am just about enough to try and make this good
Somebody save me now somebody show me how

Somebody save me now somebody show me how

'Cause I have heard all of this before

But I tried to open every door

I have heard all of this before

But I thought that I was meant for more

I thought that we were meant for more

I promise I will come around

There will be no more letting down

Do you know what I mean?

I will be wrong and you can be right

I don't care just say you'll stay here tonight
