Chasing Strings to what ends?
Each thought extends beyond our scope to see
Just like light speed: can't reach or exceed
'What there is' is only what's inside the frame
Can the painting see the painter?
Or recognize his name?
Watch our own palette building
Expanding day by day
Till the point when we can fill our Own little picture frame with life

Trace back, back track
Can't escape through the basement
Building burning down in vacuum without sound
What is there to do? What else can we do but jump?
Someday you will find your efforts were in vain and All your money spent has only bought you pain
Every person that you laughed at now is crying
All the people that you used to say were lying Truly had the answer really held the key
To saving all existence every conscious being Could live here then and now or there and when and In between the bridge of life that keeps us all from seeing
Everything forever every place at any time
