what would it mean to live a life that wasn't like this? (thats the question) look at a picture of my father and i look just like him (thats what i'm asking) to think about my home and not just feel the sting of a history thats brewed in a soul

this?

when i was 5 what was happening in my life?

and who's to pry, when everyone(s) talking/stands up and no-ones crying, now i weep for every s__, what was happening in my life and now i know, i was happy then, happy just helping my folks survive

but in my sight, my sight, my sight

ohh whats happening?

every day to feel your grave

ohh whats happening?

every day to see your pride

ohh whats happening?

everyday that i was insane

when i think about it

you should pay for what you did but i really cant commit to the living with the stress character

and you " have a baby and you seem to be too busy maybe

its like theres just this weight down on my chest and its like theres no air no air, no air

we're wanted every day

and i wait

for snow

they're waiting for you to sow my fate to shore

you gotta show me

that i wasn't in any pain and my plans were flawed air, no air, no air
