I am Faethon, the one, your son
My father is Helios
Sworn to the Styx
The river of the gods
And let me feel
The sky with my shine

The gates of the sunrise
With red color shine
And the dawn has opened the palaces
... And the dawn has paled

Everything is ready for the final call
The guardians of Olympus are opening the gates
I, Faethon, rule the sky
Lord of the sun for just a while

I fell over the scorpio

And I'm heading to Capricornus
Flames burst over the land
To deep valleys and darkened forest

Faethon you fool
You wounded our mother
Now expect for the coming of Thanatos
Zeus throws his thunder again
And Faethon drops lifeless to Iridanos

Pote Ksana thnitos sti xora tov ellinon
O' ellines thei, pote!
[Never again a mortal in the land of the greeks
Oh greek gods, never!]
