you showed me a blackness held me in the vastness of everything underneath the surface of a clean white existence lost in your resistance and I changed a mutation rearranged inside you know i don't need this buried all your secrets we were lost now we're something to hide away this doom is upon us fickle in my fondness since i've changed and the one has come to take what's yours away i cast the hoodoo i only want to hurt you can you feel everything did I get under your skin or should I dig even deeper this path's a little steeper will this matter in the way you die

flesh wounded gateway a place where we can both prey and you go to the cellar you should just leave it alone you know the spiders surround this crawling through our vortex and you stay cause you know we have found a secret home

you don't know where you come from momentum just let go rubber band into existence your soul just like me petty prizes for a price to swallow all the conflict since it's all in your mind
