The hotel bars stays open long
The party noise is audible
I'm on a phone call ten years long
Is our connection breaking down?
It's always summer
Where you are
It's always something
They say tonight is our first frost
Touch the window, while I look out
I move the thermostat one more time
Can't get enough of what I'm looking for
It's always summer where you are
It's always light
And you don't you forget
I feel a darkness

Without you the night is long
The job is harder
Is it true when you return
All will be brighter?
For you I count the days
I count the hours
Looking back on that June date
The sky stretched infinite
Tell me was it our zenith?
Or can you pull me back
To where we were?
