If your love were electricity it might light up the Broadway signs like opening night.

And if your love were a small town,
I might find myself wandering off the road more than once in a while.

But I think it might be more than I came prepared for,
but you know that I'm here and I'll try.

That big city life,
I'd throw it away
for that look in your eyes and the name tag that reads:
"We're open all night"
but you're tired and it feels like I've driven half my life for a reason to stay one more night.

And I think it might be more than I came prepared for
but you know that I'm here and I'll try.
