Albert Hammond

It Never Rains in Southern California

Listen To The World

Listen to the world, the world, the world

Listen to the people cry

Listen to the world, the world, the world

Do you ever wonder why

We don't see eye to eye?

English doesn't flow enough

Chinese isn't slow enough

Russian we don't know enough

To tell them how we feel

All those preachers tellin' you

You're religious, good for you

Perfect for the whole world too

If they know what's good for them

Oh, listen to the world, the world, the world

Listen to the people cry

Listen to the world, the world, the world

Do you ever wonder why

We don't see eye to eye?

Did you ever listen to the TV ad-man's spiel?

Love is just another way to make another deal

Don't you feel a bit ashamed

For the politician's game?

Yet we signed beside his name

And put him where he is

Oh, listen to the world, the world, the world

Listen to the people cry

Listen to the world, the world, the world

Do you ever wonder why

We don't see eye to eye?

The voice of the people should echo far and wide

Instead of keeping what they feel bottled up inside

Let the people have their say
Tomorrow isn't far away
It should be better than today
If we raise our voices

Oh, listen to the world, the world, the world
Listen to the people cry
Listen to the world, the world, the world
Did you ever wonder why
We don't see eye to eye?

Listen to the world, the world, the world
Listen to the people cry
Listen to the world, the world, the world
Did you ever wonder why
You don't see eye to eye?

Listen to the world, the world, the world
Listen to the people cry
Oh, listen to the world, the world, the world
Did you ever wonder why
You don't see eye to eye?

Listen to the world, the world, the world
Listen to the people cry...
