She sits there, the shower water washing, washing away her fears.

Her face glanced up in frustration at that voice just doesn't let up

I look up and I see that smile again
I look up and I see sunshine again
I look up and I see your face again
And I see your face again

She said the girl five minutes ago, I don't know who that was, I got lost and loose my way

She breathes in and out, again slowly and reality creeps back in It's never like the movies...

I look up and I see that smile again
I look up and I see sunshine again
I look up and I see your face again
And I see your face again
See your face again.
And I see your face again...

And you lift her hand again, and you kiss away her tears, and you lift her eyes again
