It's been awhile since I heard your name
But someone put it in my head
Been thinkin about our ending
And all those things we never said
But I'm quite the reminiscer
I love to live it back
I love to stop and think it out
Defend your mind attack, and it goes on

Yesterday I see you walkin on the corner of North & Wells
Your face a glow of diamonds
I stood silent amongst the yells
And I'll never quite explain it
There's no words for utter bliss
Just two more passing strangers
Who never know they coexist, and it goes on

So just close your eyes
And when we say goodbye,
I'll know what you're thinking up
This could have been so good
Could have been so right
This could have been everything above
This could have been love

Remember how you told me
That timing wasn't right
And How I begged to tell you different
For all those things we had despite
So Call me non believer
I'll call you gambler of our trust
How you can burn us down to ashes
And Brush it all away like dust

If you say that I never listen
Well sometimes you never hear
And every time I get you close
You seem to run off and disappear
But I'll never know your reasons
I never understood all the rules
I'm just another silly victim

Of turned lovers into fools

So just close your eyes
And when we say goodbye,
I'll know what you're thinking up
This could have been so good
Could have been so right
This could have been everything above
This could have been love
