(written by Bruce McCabe)

I used to hang out at Jack's Pool Hall you go down there and don't do nothin' at all if you wanted to play some cards there was a game in the back if you wanted to shoot or somethin' you went and talked to Jack if you had a little money you was a grade A fool there was a guy down there who used to shoot a little pool
Rack 'em up till the day he was dead that all they ever said Rack 'em up
He didn't own a TV set, didn't own a car he ate what whatever Jack was makin' back behind the bar they said he had a wife, but she left him in tears he hadn't been home in twenty five years
Rack 'em up
They came from all over thinkin' they were pretty hot put all their money on the table, wanna play the best we got nine in the corner, five in the side take a hundred dollar bill and just let it ride I tell him listen son, ain't no disaster there ain't no shame in being beat by a master Rack 'em up
til the day he was gone they said it all day long Rack 'em up
