bill payne & shaun murphy took a walk in my old neighborhood held my memories in check my first roll in the hay like a roll in the gutter it was nothing like i expected i said hold on, hold on tight close your eyes (fool) and dont you fight it ill take you for the ride of our life just another sunday

i ran into this fortune teller i said tell me about my life as the candles glowed my hand she took hold of to run down her prediction with her eyes rolled up inside her head my thoughts of fame and wealth by the time my fortune cookie unfolded the crystal-ball exploded
i said hold on, hold on tight
just another sunday
your sand castle built with the tide coming your empty life intact youve been handed the bill with no money to pay just another small distraction you say it doesnt matter but the roads we cross the ins and outs were lacking it comes back together at the end of the day the traps of our own making

its a tale in a shell that youre bound to break out of but the way you live your life your hands gripping at fate as it falls off your plate in spite of your intentions

just another sunday
