when i was young and thought nothing would harm me no-one could alarm me to the error's of my days and the nights
those dark starry nights they seemed so eternal til they went out in a blaze if i gave you a minute you'd call it a day in the life of a stranger i'm swept away
your heart, you never gave your heart to me was i so blind that i just couldn't see
that your heart, was never in my arms
you lived in the shadows
with your tattoo heart
i no longer see you
in that cellophane mask i don't have to deal with your sleight of hand past
ring silence from your call your sensual innuendo i'm not missing it at all it took only a minute for me to call it a day now your just a memory so very far away
