

Loeb Lisa "Hurricane"

Visit "Hurricane" on MotoLyrics.com

Skeleton boy by the side of the road.
He warned me, he told me;
he said, "There's this woman, she's a hurricane,
she will heal your heart up, and she is hurrying."
She said, "Don't look for holidays.
Don't look, just run away.
Go suffocate, and choke your own cry.
Go where the water,
where the water, seeps from the pink sky.
But behold this woman, she's a hurricane,
she will heal your heart up, and she is hurrying.
Remember your reflection in a pool, in a puddle."
And the leaves sped top-speed towards me,
and my image was muddled.
I'm a lightheaded wonder,
Don't you see my mind slow down?
I'm a lightheaded wonder
don't you see my mind slow down?
Slow down.
I've compassion for strangers,
an affinity for danger
won't you be my sacrifice?
I'm a lightheaded wonder
don't you see my mind slow down for you?
And for you?"
No you're a headless woman, you're a hurricane.
You will heal my heart up?
No, I will heal my own heart up, because you are hurting.
Cause I'm a sunburn slap upon your arm,
I'll twist you til you break,
and you're a hurricane.

Visit Loeb Lisa page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.