It's a bad day.

It's a train ride.

It's a bad day.

You're my medicine

It's a snow day.

It's a full moon.

It's a snow day.

When'd you get down to my bones?

Where'll I find that wishing stone?

The beads, the records,

all the calls, and the drinks alone.

First by mind, then by music you'll make this all less confusing.

It's a slow dive down,

a fast distraction,

a strange fall forward

my lame reaction.

It's a bad day.

It's a long ride.

It's a bad day.

You're my medicine

It's a sinking feeling,

pulls me through the seat of chairs.

When will you come rescue me,

find solace, and then take me there?

You'll say, "You're not too tired for this life,

and it's not gonna matter if you fall down twice.

You're not too tired for this life, and it's not gonna matter if you fall down twice. "

When'd you get down to my bones?

Where'll I find that wishing stone?

The beads, the records, all the calls, and the drinks alone.

It's a bad day.

2 miles to go.

It's a bad day.

You're my medicine

You'll say, "You're not too tired for this life,

and it's not gonna matter if you fall down twice

You're not too tired for this life, and it's not gonna
matter if you

fall down twice.

You're not too tired for this life, and it's not gonna
matter if you

fall down twice.

If you fall down, if you fall down."

You're my...

You're my medicine.

You're my medicine.

You're my medicine.

You're my medicine.

My medicine.

My medicine
