Time is giving me a warning sign for now, sparked by just a memory a memory and I, I am walking on a real thin line above, above everything I thought was mine, thought was mine

Now I can see, oh I can see where I need, I need to be and so

This is as far as I will go your life has changed and now I know

I start retracing every step I've made everything I could have saved it calls my name it calls my name tonight

The city lights seem to burn out bright into the dark hoping for that one small spark Now I can see, oh I can see where I need, I need to be
and so this is as far as I will go your life has changed and now I know

That I can never change the way we've made things this is as far as I will go, your life has changed and now
I know

If ever I need a place to be I'll just shout out your name and let you see that even though this is the way we go

now I can see, oh I can see
where I need, I need to be
and so this is as far as I will go

this is as far as I will go, your life has changed and now
I know
