First hazy glow of dawn
Light is bleeding through the cloth
But it can't touch me through these locks
No they can't get me through these locks
A man standing outside himself
Calling out where are you
A man separated from the rest
Making sure no one gets through

Isolation
Never asking yourself what if
Ignorance
A candle burning in the warm summer wind
Separation
A broken bed which i made
Desolation
Another day and life i've chosen to waste

Years and years have finally past
Painful bliss on a one way track
Cornered with shame and regret
As i gaze into a hidden sunset
Dedication
Have you ever spent you life trying to live
Isolation
I'm torn away and locked inside this house
Time passes on
Yet life stays the same
The blood on my soul remains

My temptress, the icy current
I watch her from my room
I've seen thirty years flood by
But I just can't seem to get in tune
She's always moving, always flowing
Always going somewhere new
So unlike the shell of a man
That watches from his tomb
The icy blue current
If I could only get inside
But I must do my time
Before I die
