There's a woman I've known for all of my life.
She's an anchor when all of your waves pass me by.
But theres a bottle I drink that makes me feel fun,
And I'm watching my life pass me by.

So even if I don't see these pipe dreams come true,
I hope that you know that I was thinking of you.
And as much as I wish that I could do it alone,
I can't, so that's why I'm coming home.

There's a reason I stay, though I know damn well that a city of angels can feel like a hell.
But theres a savior I seek somewhere in the sky.
And i'll join him, or at least try.

So even if I don't see these pipe dreams come true,
I hope that you know that I was thinking of you.
And as much as I wish that I could do it alone,
I can't, so that's why I'm coming home.

So even if I don't see these pipe dreams come true,
I hope that you know that I was thinking of you.
And as much as I wish that I could do it alone,
I can't, so that's why I'm coming home.

I can't, so that's why I'm coming home.
