Sometimes you gotta wonder why nothing good ever lasts

You pinch the wick smoke goes up, man it's gone so fast

I woke up this morning to a blank page and cup of coffee

Now the cup is empty and the page is full

There's daffodils in the kitchen on the table

We water them every single time we're able

But they're dying, spinning away, far too fast

Nothing good ever lasts

Why does everything die

When everyone tries so hard

Why does everything die

When everyone tries and tries and tries and tries and tries a little harder

It's easy for me to fall asleep in bed

I close my eyes and count backwards from ten

But it happens so fast, the sun shines through the window

And I'm running out my door

I'm wearing boots and stepping through the snow

Birds fly above me, crunching is below

And I won't make it melt, or at least not too fast

Nothing good ever lasts
