she closes her eyes
she put her kids to bed, and told em not to cry
she closes the doors to the medicine cabinets she wakes up on the floor she's standing alone in the middle of the street with her ear to her cellphone she loves to hear herself sing but she cries herself to sleep as her world starts to sink.

shes walking to her hometown
just to see the leaves on the ground the leaves on the ground, and she don't wanna be found.
no she don't wanna be found.
she don't wanna be found.
no she don't wanna be found.
she thinks of the days in her red camaro as the years speed away and she wants to go back to all the places that she's seen and all the people she knew and he treats her so bad and left her with two kids he pretends he never had and we just try to stay strong cause even if your heart strays you know where you belong

shes walking to her hometown
just to see the leaves on the ground.
the leaves on the ground.
no she don't wanna be found.
she don't wanna be found.
no she don't wanna be found.
no she don't wanna be found.
