

Sivert Høyem

"Father's Day"

Visit "Father's Day" on MotoLyrics.com

In the water, not far from the shore
Your lion's heart don't beat anymore
Our connection has been cut
I'm still alive, but you are not
Where do we come from, and where do we go?
It never hurt me that I don't know
But what was settled has been blown apart
And a homeless feeling has filled my heart
Now your heart don't beat anymore

In the hallway you turned your back
Didn't you, didn't you?
It must have hit you like a heart attack
But I did just what I had to do
It was the only way I guess
A headless rage and a violent mess
We should have made a brand new start
Now that I'd beat my way into your heart
But your heart don't beat anymore
No, your heart don't beat anymore
No, your heart don't beat

For as long as you still drew breath
You shielded me against my death
You were not there most of the time
But now that you're gone I'm next in line
Any doom can find me here
I'm in the open and it's all too clear
That your heart don't beat anymore
No, your heart don't beat anymore
No, your heart don't beat anymore
No, your heart don't beat anymore

Father's day, father's day is almost every day
Father's day, father's day, the bill we will never pay

Visit Sivert Høyem page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.