Don't blame your daughter that's just sentimental and don't blame your mom for all that you've done wrong Your dad is not guilty you came out a little faulty and the factory closed so you can't hold them liable You come from an island, you're cutting diamonds
with a rubbery knife

Your autograph is worthless so don't send me letters and don't mail me cash
'cause your money is no good What's left in your mattress is holes and lack of love left some hair from a horse, and none of it is yours, man

You come from an island,
you're cutting diamonds
with a rubbery knife

And the song you sing today wasn't always in your head, the words you tryin' to say are the ones you shouldn't 've said they're glistenin' like diamonds, go out and find' em
but don't blame your daughter

Read me your tombstone, tell me you're sorry, fax me your will,

you owe me something still Blood is like water the bath that you poured me has drained and it's gone, don't blame it on your son

wasn't always in your head,
are the ones you shouldn't 've said they're glistening like diamonds,
go out and find'em
The world is full of diamonds
go out and find'em
