-Huey-

When I was a young boy
My daddy sat me down
He said "son, don't you never go
To the dark side of town
I'm talking downtown Memphis
See, that's where the black folk play"
And I said "Yes sir daddy"
And then I snuck down anyway
See never was taught to read none
Oh no never taught to write
The only thing my daddy taught
Was white should stay with white
But I heard it through the alleys
It floated on the breeze
It burst out through the doorways
And it knocked me through my knees
It broke down all of my senses
And made me feel so home
See I was lost but now I found
The music of my soul
The music of my soul

And then one day my daddy died
And we laid him in his grave
And my mama she cried and cried and cried
And prayed that he'd be saved
But all I felt was pity
For he never understood
Well how could people be so bad
And made me feel so good
It went run through my body
It drive me by my heart

-Felicia-

It shot out from my fingertips
And pulled me right apart

-Both-

It broke down all my senses
It made me feel so home
And I would love it til the day I died
