Meg White: Round John Virgin

Jack White: Yeah, you're right. It's Round John Virgin. I was wrong.

Commentator Mort Crim: Ponder what's there.

Jack White: Ponder what's there. 1, 2, 3

Though I hear you calling, I will not answer

Though I hear you calling, I will not answer

And the sun may shine right through your tooth, dear

And the wind may blow right through my ear

Though I hear you calling, I will not answer

Oh, I hear you calling, no I will not answer

I broke your code

And I broke your code

Come on hit me Yeah, yeah (6X)

I will not answer, yeah

Though I hear you calling, no I will not answer

The sun may shine out to your mouth, dear

And the wind may blow right through my ear

Though I hear you calling, oh, I will not answer

Though I hear you calling, but I will not answer

Calling and I broke your code

I will not answer (7X)

Though I hear you calling, I will not answer (echoing)

Though I hear you calling, but I will not answer

(echoing)

And I will not answer and I broke your code

Uhmmm, Broke your code

Yeah, uhmmm

Though I hear you calling... And the sun is shining

I will not answer ...Right through your tooth, dear

Female announcer: The way we plan it, it's an extra because it's extra convenient.

For just three dollars.
