I must admit this hasn't taken me by surprise When I see my friend get sucked into all of this world's lies
It was only a little decision, after all he didn't have time
And it lead him to a promotion, but left his first love behind

He said, 'I'm looking for a better way to pay off my first home
And I'm looking for the day I get an office of my own'

Well I must admit this world often tempts my fallen eyes
And I fall in love with all my earthly home provides But I make this vowing decision, to get lost in divine romance
And at times I forsake my first love, but He woes my heart again

'Cause He's the God of second chance

And I'm looking for the narrow way back to where I belong
And I'm looking for the narrow way that leads me to my home
This world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him
before I fall behind
This world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him
before I fall behind
This world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him
before I fall behind
This world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him
before I fall behind

'Cause I'm looking for the narrow way back to where I belong
And I'm looking for the narrow way that leads me to my
home

And I'm looking for,
The narrow way
The narrow way

I must admit this hasn't taken me by surprise
