The restraints of action
They call out to me and ask, How do you know?
The places we worship
Were silenced to never remember

Retrace and let it go, I tell myself that we'll never remember
Embrace and watch it die, to live again, or we will never remember

The righteous, the faceless
They melt away and allude to the sky
Our namesake, we honor
We swore that we'd never say never

Retrace and let it go, I tell myself that we'll never
remember
remember today

Reach out! Can you hear me?
They're sold on our every action
Reach out! Can you hear me?
They sold out our hearts for this passion

Or we will never remember
We will never remember

Or we will never remember
We will never remember today
