Oh, the moon burns tonight
Like a thousand staring eyes directed towards mine
Bend and break with the light
As we rise one last time

So dont say you dont care when you know that I do

Write down every little thing that makes you love me
Right now remember how I held you above me

And the stars that burn through our eyes
Like an everlasting gaze cutting through the night
As we walk out into the night
And we cry one last time

So dont say you don't care when you know that I do
Dont make it unfair, girl, you know that you do

Cause this may be the last love, the last touch, the last
to shine, to shine

So write down every little thing that makes you love me

Right now remember how I held you above me

to shine, to shine

Every little thing that makes you love me

Write down....
