Sixteen seconds is all that you have
To make me believe that you understand
That none is this matters
Your life is a lie
You were never born; You will never die

Six seconds left until your eyes turn green
And you want to question everything you've ever seen
Every word you've heard, everything that you thought
Had to be real, but you know that it's not

Pain transformed into joy
Sorrow into peace

Chorus
All of this has been foreseen
All of the things that you could have been
Things are never what they seem
There's no waiting of promisedream

All of this has been foretold
You were never in control
Just a puppet on the screen
Never decided anything
End Chorus

Take my hand and fall with me
To a new world far beneath the sea
To think about time, your thoughts and your sins
They will fall away as we start to swim

Away from everything that is not real
The way you felt is not the way we feel
Criticals reach farther than you see
Brace your new reality

Pain transformed into joy
Sorrow into peace

Sixteen seconds is all that you have
To make me believe that you understand

That none is this matters
Your life is a lie
You were never born; You will never die

Chorus

Pain transformed into joy
Sorrow into peace
