You would think by now I might have learned
That I'm still healing from when I got burned
Not trying to be rude or too upfront
But when I think of her here's what I want:

She never colored in the lines
And she thought high school was a giant waste of time
She's never scared to share what's on her mind
She's impossible to find, she's impossible to find

I'm not terrified yet I'm concerned
I won't find a prize that I must earn
So I'm skipping all the tricks and all the stunts
But when I think of her here's what I want:

She never colored in the lines
And she though high school was a giant waste of time
She's never scared to share what's on her mind
She's impossible to find, she's impossible to find

Cause I got:
Late night handshakes, cocktail napkins
Cigarette breaks nothing's happening
Two left feet and useless chatter
'Til I meet the girl who matters

She never colored in the lines
And she though high school was a giant waste of time

She never colored in the lines
And she thought high school was a giant waste of time
And everybody says I aim too high
She's impossible to find, she's impossible to find
She's impossible to find, she's impossible to find
