Sometimes we jump the train fare, to get to where were going

Sometimes we're hooded up and so you hear the sirens start blowing

Get knocked up, we knock your girl up just to find a place to stay

House prices rising, wages stay the same as how it is today

We are all just colored souls

In these black and white towns we roam

We are all just colored souls

In these black and white towns we roam

Sometimes we reminisce about our school days when we were care free

'Cause thirteen grand a year means you are left with nothing but worries

And so we smoke away our problems or we drink until the sun comes up

Why does it always feel like who we've got is waiting for our numbers to come out

So many young faces all trying to find their places

See how these places forgot about these youth they created

We are all just colored souls

In these black and white towns we roam

We are all just colored souls

In these black and white towns we roam

With the PlayStation generation xboxed up on your cctv
You can file us under hoody or asbo as you take away our identity

And still we sing...

We are all just colored souls

In these black and white towns we roam

We are all just colored souls

In this black and white towns we roam

we roam...

we ro-o-o-o-o-oam...
we ro-o-o-o-o-oam...
we ro-o-o-o-o-oam...
we roam...
