If there were a way I would even the score.
You would love me less and I'd love you more.
I think I knew all along we were just wrong
But you were so kind and I thought I was strong.
Now there's nothing left to do.
All the trying's been no use.

'Cause the heart wants what the heart wants.
'Cause the heart wants what the heart wants.

I can't say I wouldn't do it all over again,
Don't know if that means we lose or we win.
All that you've ever done is just love me more
Than anyone else ever loved me before.
Now there's nothing left to say
That would make it all ok.

'Cause the heart wants what the heart wants.
'Cause the heart wants what the heart wants.

And there were just enough pieces that fit
To hold it in place but I have to admit;
I know it's not broken but it can't be fixed.

All the trying's been no use.

'Cause the heart wants what the heart wants.
'Cause the heart wants what the heart wants.
Heart wants what the heart wants.
'Cause the heart wants what the heart wants.
What the heart wants
What the heart wants
What the heart wants
What the heart wants
What the heart wants
What the heart wants
Heart, wants.
