I'll quit talking bout my fantasizing, you know the sun's still rising and it's no surprise that in a minute you'll be crawling back with eyes so wide and...

I just took a little breath too deep, and now my eyes can't adjust to see all the whites and the blacks and the gaps and the cracks that make it distant between you and me.

You've got an echo I can only hear, no need to scream girl if you're so near. I can feel your breath, it's right up by my chest, and u know there's nothing real to fear

Oh, I got these words I want to tell ya, but my voice gets lost sometimes. It's like a poem in my head with some things I've never said and I don't know how to rhyme the lines.

Hey princess, where's your crown? I thought I saw you shine from a mile away. But It might just be the sun coming off that pretty little face

Baby, don't jump the gun. The key to my heart, I'm making you another one.
Please keep it safe.

Oh your heartbeat, it's the metronome to my every move. Whether running, laughing, crying, watching people born or dying, how does it stay so smooth.

I let your smile wrap around me, I let your whole self surround me. When I was stuck in the dark with no hope, I still can't believe you found me.

If the earth moves so fast, but time move so slow, when we stand in this pretty little moment, everything just seems to flow (so right)

Hey princess, where's your crown? I thought I saw you shine from a mile away. But It might just be the sun coming off that pretty little face

Baby, don't jump the gun. The key to my heart, I'm making you another one.
Please keep it safe.

Princess please come down from your throne, I've waited all my lifetime. No need to be alone - we've checked the clock and it's just the right time.

Princess step softly. I don't want no sound to touch my ear, cause the softest breathe from your softest word is the softest thing I'll ever hear.

Princess, I know you're thinking every thought they told you not to. But it's time to break out, to spread your wings now and girl I know you want to.

Princess a million arms from a million men couldn't hold me back and the sky will fall down crashing to the ground if anyone should disagree with that.

Hey princess, where's your crown? I thought I saw you shine from a mile away. But It might just be the sun coming off that pretty little face

Baby, I jumped the gun. The key to your heart, I want the only one.
Please keep it safe.
