In a lie I heard the news today
So they said it was some kind of rare disease
Tell me why no man should have to hide away
Where no one could ever see inside his mystery

Now you're gone away never had the chance to pray
But I know you're there today
In a world with no shame
No more disguise you're an angel in the sky
You don't have to run, you don't have to hide
In a world with no lies
I know you're there today
In a world with no shame

I can see, I can see the truth in your immortal words
Between the lines a poet's cry never heard
I am healed, healed by the sound of your sweet sweet song
Music was your dream now it's your legacy that makes me strong

Now you're gone away but your beauty still remains Breath of time take the pain of a statue in the rain
No more disguise you're an angel in my eyes
You don't have to run, you don't have to hide
In a world with no lies
And the angels call your name
In a world with no shame

na na na na na

To my friend read these words in this letter I send Cause I know that there is no end
I'll think of you again and again

In a lie I heard the news today
So they said it was some kind of rare disease
There's no more mystery

Now you're gone away never had the chance to pray
But I know you're there today
In a world with no shame
No more disguise you're an angel in my eyes
You don't have to run, you don't have to hide
In a world with no lies
And the angels call your name
In a world with no shame
You don't have to feel the pain
In a world with no shame
All your beauty remains
In a world with no shame
Na na na na na
